

Change Management

Title	Duration (minutes)	Author	Course Description
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Accepting Organizational Change 	10	Absorb	Change is inevitable. There will always be something that organizations need to change to stay ahead of the competition and keep up with the ever-evolving business and cultural trends. In this course you will learn what organizational change means, some of the most common types of organizational changes that take place, why might some be opposed to change, and how can you situate yourself and your organization to better manage change.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Change Management in the Modern World 	7	Absorb	In this module we'll look at some examples of change in business and how you, as a leader, should manage large and small changes.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Dealing with Project Changes 	5	Absorb	In this microlearning module we'll look at how to handle one of a project manager's worst nightmares – project changes. It's one of the main issues that crops up during a project, so in this module you'll learn how to deal with change requests and scope creep and how to communicate with stakeholders about changes effectively.